Saving and Importing References into EndNote

SciQuest

1. Access the SciQuest database.
2. Perform your search.

- For help with searching databases, ask at the library information desk.

3. Select the references you wish to export to EndNote by clicking the check-box to the left of each reference.
4. At the top of the results list click the Export radio button.
5. When the Export format box appears select EndNote ReMan, Procite (ISI format).
6. Click Export
7. A box will open, click open.
8. When the import is complete, only the newly imported reference will show in the Library window. This is an ‘intermediary’ stage which gives you the opportunity to modify the reference as required before it is aggregated into the main library. You can check individual records to ensure the data has been imported into the correct fields, or add notes.
9. Once you have made all the changes you need, click on All Reference to see your complete library.
