As a student “fair dealing” allows you to make one copy from sources (Copyright Act Section 43) for your own research or private study. You cannot share the copy by electronic means with any other person.

You cannot share the copy by electronic means with any other person.

Your entitlements:

Copying from Books
Only one chapter of each book you use can be copied.

Copying from Journals
Only one article per issue of a journal may be copied.

Copying from Magazines
Only one article per issue of a magazine may be copied.

Copying from Newspapers
Only one article per issue of a newspaper may be copied.

Copying from Theses
The copyright of a thesis is owned by the author. You cannot copy any of it without the author’s permission.

Academic staff may make multiple copies of a copyright work (or those acting for an academic staff member) under our licence with Copyright Licensing NZ.

Your entitlements:

10% of a book - including pictures and graphs
15 pages from a book of short stories or poetry book
1 journal/periodical article (more if on the same subject)
5 articles per newspaper
A complete work if the work is unavailable/with approval from Copyright Licensing NZ.
An artistic work if published within a related literary work.

You may make copies of:

Material where copyright has expired.
Material where you have written permission from the copyright owner.

Unitec policies require you to ensure that you are not breaching any New Zealand laws. Any breaches that Unitec is informed of could lead to disciplinary action.

If you infringe copyright you may exposed to legal action. It is your responsibility as the person copying to ensure that you do not exceed your copyright entitlement.

You can find further information on copyright at http://libguides.unitec.ac.nz/copyright